pass for 50 any day. My wife died several years ago and for the past two years I've been seeing a widow 48.

We enjoy each other's company and have similar backgrounds. There is no reason why we shouldn't marry except that she doesn't want to. She says she likes me but she doesn't love me. I know she is not seeing anyone else. I want a wife not a pal. Shall I break up with her or keep hoping? —YOUNGER THAN SPRINGTIME.

Dear Younger Than: Give the pal three months to re-tool. If at the end of that period she still is not interested in marriage, tell her it's been charming. Then find a woman who wants to share your life.

Confidential to Unsold: Sorry, your friend is correct. There's no such thing as "pure teasing" or "100% kidding." In every joke is a germ of seriousness. People often "kid" to cover up.

Confidential to Deep Thinker: You're not thinking deeply enough. The correct quote is "THE LOVE OF money is the root of all evil."

Confidential to Unnerved Mother: A swat on the back porch never hurt a three-year-old. There's a difference between a beating and a well-timed, strategically placed wallop.
